FOREWORD

The information revolution in the country has offered a new challenge to the Indian industries. Its impact on the transfer of technology is being increasingly felt in concerned sectors, including the agro-based food industries. What was once a wide gap between the manufacturer and the user in the agro-based food industry is now slowly but steadily narrowing itself due to the new awareness created by the transfer of technology through systematic information. Especially, information in the sector of food machinery and packaging equipment, was not readily available at a single point so far and the need for consolidated and comprehensive information source seems to be ever growing. Further there has been a structural change in output profile of Indian food industry as evidenced by not only the increased production but also with the introduction of myriad of different convenience and fun foods. In view of this and also in response to innumerable requests from the food and allied sector, Central Food Technological Research Institute, Mysore, directed its efforts to bring out a ready reference keeping in view the requirement of the ever expanding food business, both at domestic and international markets.

The main feature of this Directory is that it provides more than 3000 classification of machinery and equipments on their functional and utility basis and indicating also the available sources. Further, the turn-key project capabilities in specific areas have also been given to the benefit of the user.

This has been possible because of the understanding and cooperation extended by different food machinery and equipment manufacturers/suppliers in response to requests. We acknowledge hereby with gratitude their willing response. An attempt has been made by us to computerise available information to obtain the classification of equipment and machinery. I thank M/s Mysore Computers and Management Consultants, Mysore, for offering their services in Computer Programme development. This publication is intended to be a convenient compendium for not only the food and allied sectors as such, but also for the policy makers, consultancy organisations, development agencies, trade associations, R & D and training institutes. Further it gives an overview of the capabilities and also the panoroma of Indian food machineries and packaging equipments.

I would like to thank the efforts of the Economic and Market Information Cell of Industrial Development and Consultancy Services of this Institute in bringing out this Directory. In particular, I thank Mrs.J.Hemalatha Rao, Mr.N.Nagaraja, Mrs.Malathi Prabhakara and Mr.K.R.Dinker, who worked with dedication for bringing out this Directory under the guidance of Dr.V.H.Potty, Chairman of Technology Application Division. I also thank Mr.K.A.Ranganath, Mr.S.Umesh and Mr.S.Ananthanarayan for their efforts in printing and publishing the Directory. Since this is only the first edition, there might be some omissions and commissions, the Institute would welcome comments and suggestions for further improvements and additional information to be incorporated in the next edition.
